Reason for Donating: I decided to become an egg donor because I like the idea that something that is a relatively small decision on my part could potentially make a really significant difference in someone else's life. I also appreciate that egg donation is a serious commitment, and I would approach the process responsibly.

To my recipients, I would simply say that I hope everything works out for you and that this process brings you the family you're hoping for. I know choosing a donor is a very personal decision, so I appreciate the trust involved in that choice, and I wish you all the best.

Behavioural Traits

What is most important in life to you?	The most important things to me are my family, having a sense of independence and being able to build a stable and fulfilling life for myself.
If you had unlimited resources and could save one thing on earth what would it be?	Probably animals. I think they're one of the few things on Earth that can't really advocate for themselves or make decisions about what happens to their environment, so I'd want to use the resources to protect them.
What are your views on religion and spirituality, and practiced religion?	I don't personally practice a religion and I would describe myself as more non-religious than spiritual. I tend to base my views on what I can understand and find evidence for. That said, I respect religion and understand the important role it can play in people's lives. I can appreciate the sense of community, hope, belonging and comfort that people can find through their faith, even though I don't personally share those beliefs.
Childhood religion:	Christianity (Old Apostolic Church)
Any specific achievements or aspects of recognition in your family:	None cooking, travelling and exploring new places. I also enjoy going to the beach, listening to music and learning about different cultures and languages.

What is your preferred holiday?	Mountains
If you were offered an all-inclusive holiday, what would it be?	I would choose a trip to the Netherlands. I'd want to explore different cities, spend time in cafés, try different foods, visit landmarks and museums, and cycle around the cities. I'd want to see as much of the country as possible and really experience the culture and everyday life there.
Which interesting places have you visited?	One place that stands out to me is PheZulu Safari Park, which I visited on a school excursion when I was younger. I remember seeing the traditional Zulu performances and the surroundings being very different from what I was used to. I was quite young at the time, so I don't remember every detail, but it has stayed with me as a memorable experience.
What are your feelings on animal welfare?	I feel quite strongly about animal welfare. I don't believe that simply wanting an animal means someone is automatically fit to have one. I think people should be properly assessed and held responsible for whether they can provide a safe and caring environment. Animals are living beings that can feel pain, fear and distress, so they shouldn't be subjected to neglect, cruelty or unnecessary suffering. I believe they deserve love, care and respect throughout their lives.
Strength and weaknesses:	Strengths - I would say that I am resourceful, responsible and determined. I'm good at figuring things out when I don't immediately know how to do something, and I take the things I commit to seriously. I'm also quite observant and tend to notice small details. Weaknesses -I can be quite particular about how I like things to be done, and sometimes I spend more time than necessary making sure something is done properly. I'm also not always the quickest to ask for help because I tend to try to figure things out myself first.
What do others generally think of you?	I think people would describe me as confident, open-minded and passionate. I tend to keep a fairly small circle, but I'm not particularly shy or withdrawn; I simply value having a few close relationships rather than being close to everyone. I'm also someone who listens and genuinely tries to understand where other people are coming from. I'm very interested in human behaviour and social issues, and I care quite a lot about fairness and social justice.
