What is most important in life to you?	The most important thing to me is family—both the one I come from and the one I hope to build someday. I truly value deep, meaningful relationships and believe that love and support are at the heart of a fulfilling life. Alongside that, I prioritize my health and personal growth, always striving to become the best version of myself, both emotionally and physically. I find purpose in helping others in any way I can, and the opportunity to contribute to someone else's journey toward becoming a parent is something I consider incredibly meaningful. Living a life of compassion, intention, and integrity is what guides me every day.
If you had unlimited resources and could save one thing on earth what would it be?	If I had unlimited resources and could save one thing on Earth, it would be the well-being of future generations. That means protecting their access to clean air, safe water, health, education, and the chance to grow up in a world full of opportunity and love. I believe that by investing in the next generation—whether through healthcare, family support, or the environment—we're ensuring a better future for everyone. Every child deserves the chance to thrive, and if I had the power to make that possible on a larger scale, I wouldn't hesitate.
What are your views on religion and spirituality, and practiced religion?	I respect all belief systems and appreciate the role that religion and spirituality can play in people's lives.
